A judge on Monday ordered two brothers charged in the mass murder of a family of five to stand trial together, a sign that prosecutors believe they are guilty and plan to obtain the death penalty. Judge George Effinger continued the pretrial hearings for the defendants, Scott and Tano Ditroia, while he takes a break to allow him to consider the evidence that prosecutors plan to present. "That's a huge decision because that means that we get to present this case to a jury," Defend Arizona, a group of self-proclaimed "constitutional sheriffs," said in a Facebook post. "These are two inbred, corrupt, murderous sons of a bitches who need to die." Prosecutors have already filed notice of intent to seek the death penalty in the case, but have not set a date for the trial to begin. Attorneys representing the accused said the case would take around a year to proceed. The brothers are due to appear at a hearing on July 8. The five were charged with murder on the alleged basis of conspiracy to commit kidnapping and five counts of first-degree murder. Ditroia's attorney, Laura Bonanno, argued during the earlier court appearances that the initial indictment against the family members was rushed and lacked adequate due process protections. The U.S. Attorney's Office said in an Aug. 10 statement the newly filed charges contained "additional and relevant allegations." The families of the victims did not immediately respond to requests for comment.Q: I can't reset my password in CodeIgniter after a hard reset?
